Wonders of Modern Science

Modern science has revolutionized our lives, bringing about remarkable advancements that have significantly improved our quality of life. In our country, the impact of these scientific wonders is evident in various aspects of daily life, from healthcare and communication to transportation and education. Day and night we make use of innumerable discoveries and inventions of science.

Firstly, modern science has had a profound impact on education. Digital technologies have made learning more interactive and accessible. Online courses, educational apps, and virtual classrooms have opened up new opportunities for us. This democratization of education is helping to bridge the gap between urban and rural areas.

Secondly, communication has been revolutionized by modern science. The advent of the internet, smartphones, and social media platforms has made it possible for people to connect instantly with others around the world. In our country, this has facilitated the exchange of information, ideas, and cultural values, fostering a more interconnected society.

Thirdly, transportation has seen significant advancements due to scientific innovation. The development of modern vehicles, improved road infrastructure, and public transportation systems have made travel faster and more convenient.

Fourthly, medical advancements such as vaccines, antibiotics, and advanced surgical techniques have greatly reduced mortality rates and increased life expectancy. Telemedicine and mobile health apps have made healthcare services more accessible, especially in remote areas, ensuring that people receive timely medical assistance. In addition, science has increased food production greatly. If we can apply the scientific methods properly, there will be no hunger in the world. Tractors, power-pumps, fertilizers, high-yielding varieties of crops and irrigation techniques have revolutionized agriculture.

Science may become a curse too. Science is for the benefit of mankind but out of selfish motive, man misuses science and brings untold sufferings. Some scientists have invented dreadful weapons. Tanks, missiles, torpedoes, atom and hydrogen bombs can easily destroy the world in a moment.

The wonders of modern science have brought about transformative changes in our country, facilitating the education system, enhancing healthcare, communication, and transportation. These advancements have improved the quality of life and opened up new opportunities for the country's development.

Duties and Responsibilities of Students

Student life is the most valuable period in a person's life. This is the time when the seeds of future life are sown. For this, it is called the sowing season in our life. During this period a student has to take certain steps to be successful and happy in his future life.

The principal duty of a student is to study and acquire knowledge on various subjects and ideas. He must study according to a schedule. He has to be attentive to his studies and teachers. He should also read newspapers, magazines, literature, history, etc. Without being properly educated, they will not be able to carry out their duties properly in their professional life. Side by side with their study, students have to participate in various co-curricular activities such as scout, debating, writing in college magazine, games and sports, etc. Without participating in these areas, students cannot properly grow physically and mentally. Participation in these things develops the students' latent talents and enables them to grow into perfect men.

Alongside their study, they have many more duties and responsibilities which they must carry out in order to be good citizens and true men. A student should remember that character is the crown of a man. So, he has to cultivate good manners and other important noble virtues. All moral qualities like honesty, modesty, truthfulness, discipline, perseverance, sincerity, punctuality must be acquired during the student life. He should also render some services to his society and country. He should make the illiterate literate. He can make the farmers aware of the modern methods of cultivation. He can play an important role in making people aware of the family planning. In case of national emergencies like floods, tornadoes, storms, etc. he must not sit idle. He must extend his helping hands during these times.

A student must obey and honour his parents. When they are sick, helpless or old, he must serve them. He should also be obedient to his teachers and other superiors. A student must not waste his time and energy. So, he must possess a sound health by doing regular physical exercise, taking part in games and sports. Moreover, he must always avoid any evil company. Besides, a student may have the knowledge of politics but he must not take part in active politics. It is because many political parties and their unethical leaders use them only for their selfish interests.

Students are the future leaders of the country. People cherish great hope and dream in students. To reap the good and expected harvest of success in future, a student must sow good seeds during his student life. Otherwise, it will bring him utter failure, untold sorrows, miseries and repentance.

Students and Social Service

Students are the future leaders and makers of a nation. They are the devotees in the temple of learning. So, the most important duty of students is to study seriously with devotion. It does not mean that they are isolated from society. They are also social beings like other classes of people. They enjoy the same social benefits, rights, and privileges. So, as members of a society, they are subject to perform certain duties to society. There are many kinds of social services and students have a lot to do in these sectors.

Living in a developing country like ours, students must render some social services for the development and welfare of the nation. So, during the long vacation and leisure time, students can open night schools and teach the illiterate children and adult people. They can also teach the farmers about the modern methods of cultivation, the use of fertilizers and proper caring of crops. They can suggest them to dig a pond for fish cultivation or to make a farm. Students have duties towards society no doubt, but they should not always remain preoccupied with these. They should render social services during leisure time or during long vacations.

Students can render immense service in the field of health. They can take part in raising awareness regarding population problem. The villagers and the people living in the slums have no knowledge about health, nutrition, and sanitation. Students can teach them all about the basic rules of health, nutrition and sanitation. Female students can also teach the uneducated women how to keep their houses neat and clean, how to bring up children and look after their health.

Students can prove to be worthy during natural disasters. In times of flood, famine, and cyclone, earthquake and epidemic, they can come forward to help the affected people. They can collect money from the rich, rescue the affected, feed the hungry, nurse the sick and cloth the unclothed. During epidemics, medical students can serve the sick with food, clothes and medicine.

Students are a great source of strength to the country. They have ideals, energy and power to work. If they are rightly guided, they can really render very valuable service to society. There must be selfless leaders to make right use of them. Under proper guidance and noble inspiration, they can work wonders.

Uses and Abuses of Internet in Bangladesh

Internet is the latest miracle that has ushered in a revolution in the application of science for the benefit of mankind. By accessing to internet today the vast treasure of all forms of knowledge, information, inventions, techniques, process, technologies, arts, literature etc. can be made available. It has made inroads into all walks of our life. The pervasive use of the Internet has revolutionized communication, education, and commerce, yet its potential for abuse raises significant concerns about privacy, mental health, and the spread of misinformation.

The internet has revolutionized communication, education, and commerce in Bangladesh. Today through internet, people all over the world can communicate effectively and inexpensively with each other. Unlike traditional broadcasting media, such as radio and television, the internet does not have centralized distribution system. Instant messaging, social media, and video calls allow young people to stay connected with family and friends, and to collaborate with peers globally. Educationally, students have access to a vast array of resources and online courses that were previously unavailable. Government uses the internet for internal communication, distribution of information and automated tax processing. In Bangladesh, the use of internet has taken a leap in the last few years. The government of our country can take it as an aid to decision making process for each ministry. This can help bringing transparency in the very process of governance. The rise of e-commerce platforms has also enabled young entrepreneurs to reach broader markets and consumers to shop conveniently from home.

However, the internet also raises significant concerns about privacy. Personal data is often collected by websites and apps, sometimes without proper consent or security measures. Young people are particularly vulnerable to privacy breaches, which can lead to identity theft, financial loss, and other forms of exploitation. Mental health is another critical issue associated with Internet use among the youth. Excessive time spent online can lead to addiction, anxiety, and depression. Social media platforms often contribute to feelings of inadequacy and loneliness as young people compare themselves to curated, idealized portrayals of others.

The spread of misinformation is a pervasive problem. Social media and other online platforms are rife with fake news, conspiracy theories, and misleading information. Young people are often unable to distinguish between reliable and false information, leading to confusion and misguided beliefs.

In conclusion, while the internet offers numerous benefits, its misuse poses significant risks. It is crucial for stakeholders, including the government, educators, and parents, to foster a balanced and responsible approach to Internet usage. By implementing stricter regulations, promoting digital literacy, and ensuring equitable access, Bangladesh can maximize the benefits of the Internet while mitigating its adverse effects on society.

Floods in Bangladesh

A flood is an overflow of water that submerges land that is usually dry. During the summer and the rainy seasons, the water of the rivers often rises so high because of incessant and heavy rainfall that it overflows the banks and submerges vast area of land. This sudden raise of water is called flood. It is a natural calamity. Flood occurs in Bangladesh almost every year. When it takes place, it weakens our hopes of prosperity. It is like a curse from nature on us.

Flood is mainly caused by heavy showers of rain during the rainy season. Rivers and canals cannot hold the water of rains and the water overflows the banks which causes flood. In hilly regions, floods may occur as a result of heavy downfall of water on account of the melting of snow on mountains. Again, catastrophic flood may be caused by cyclones and tidal bores in the seas. In our country, flood is caused mainly due to heavy rainfall, blockage of water and release of too much water from the Farakka Barrage.

Flood causes great havoc and sufferings to millions of people. Huts and cattle are washed away, crops are damaged and many lives and properties are wiped out. People take shelter on the high roads, in schools and colleges. All communication with the outside world is cut off. Again, after the flood, various kinds of diseases such as cholera, dysentery, diarrhoea break out in the flood-affected areas. Many people become homeless. After losing everything, many poor people move here and there for work. Many people become jobless. The economy of the country also becomes weak and miserable. There is a scarcity of food, clothes and drinking water everywhere.

Hence, the sufferings of the people know no bounds. Flood creates different kinds of socio-economic crises in the society.

The 2024 flood shows how badly floods can affect people's lives. It teaches us that we need better systems to manage floods and protect people in the future. The silted-up beds of our rivers should be excavated for carrying more water. Proper embankments should be constructed along the banks of the rivers. By following these measures, we can control flood. However, flood also does some good to us. It makes our lands fertile by carrying silt. Crops grow in plenty on the fertile land. It washes away filth and dirt.

In conclusion, floods in Bangladesh remain a serious problem, often affecting homes, crops, and livelihoods. However, better planning, stronger infrastructure, and community cooperation can help reduce the damage. By working together, people can adapt to these challenges. With proper measures, Bangladesh can become more resilient against future floods.

IMPORTANCE OF READING NEWSPAPER

Newspaper is the storehouse of knowledge. A man can be benefitted in many ways reading a newspaper. It is often regarded as the mirror of the world. It provides us with different news and views of the current world. It is said that a good nation must have a considerable number of newspaper readers. In my opinion, a newspaper can influence a person more effectively than other forms of information media.

Newspaper benefits us in many different ways. People get current information, news, and views of the country as well as of the world. There are different pages on different issues in a newspaper from which readers get different types of news. A man can know about what is happening in the country's political arena sitting at home. A student can also be benefited from a newspaper. There are pages on education from which students can learn many things about English, Bengali, Mathematics, Geography, Science, and other subjects. We can also know about the international politics and affairs going through the international page. Those who are the regular readers of the international page are very much aware of the geographical and political affairs of the world. By going through the editorial column, a reader can know about the analytical explanation of a thing or affair. We can learn about our country's economy, its business affairs, and many other statistical things from the business page. Sports page is a popular one to the sports loving readers. This page provides them with the latest news of sports and games. Religion and religious analysis are also found in a newspaper.

Sometimes, many odd or false pieces of information are also published in newspapers. This is called yellow journalism that results in great problems in a country. So, the authorities or writers must be conscious of the interests of a country, otherwise, it may hamper national and international relations.

Newspaper reading can widen the mental horizon of an individual. We should cultivate the habit of reading newspaper to broaden our knowledge. A man who develops the habit of reading newspaper becomes an enlightened person. In developing international relations, newspapers act as a medium. They also offer various advertisements of jobs. So, they are helpful for removing unemployment problems. The stories and novels give us much pleasure. So, considering all these, we find that reading newspapers greatly benefit us.

The Rivers of Bangladesh

Bangladesh is a land of rivers. Hundreds of rivers have criss-crossed this delta. Many of these rivers are wide and long. Rivers play an important role in the economy of this country. These waterways provide vital resources for farming, fishing, and transport, supporting millions of people. However, they also bring challenges like floods and erosion, making careful management essential.

The prime rivers are the Padma, the Meghna, the Jamuna, the Brahmaputra, the Dhaleswari and the Karnaphuli. Besides, there are many small rivers like the Buriganga, the Sitalakhya, the Madhumati, the Mohananda and others. They have tributaries as well. The Karnaphuli originates from the Lusai Mountains. The other rivers originate from the Himalayas and they all flow into the Bay of Bengal. The rivers are very useful for our existence. They are helpful for our agriculture. They are important for water transportation system. They are the source of fish and fish is our main food along with rice. The rivers bring enough silt which makes the soil fertile. The rivers are inter-related with our lives. River-ways are important for transportation. Many industries have grown on the banks of the rivers.

Our rivers are a great source of wealth. They are the homes of many fishes, birds, and plants. The people of Bangladesh are greatly influenced by rivers. The art and culture of our people are also reflected by the rivers. Many people's livelihoods depend on rivers. Besides all these, our rivers are also the source of energy. Its strong current can produce electricity. The Karnaphuli Hydro-Electric Project is an instance of this.

The present condition of the rivers is lamentable. It is a pity that most of our rivers are drying up. Big shoals have immersed in their bosoms. Most of the rivers and their tributaries have already become dead. Besides, many rivers are the victims of pollution and encroachment. The rivers of Bangladesh are basically being polluted by the discharge of untreated industrial effluent and urban waste water. The drying up of rivers is seriously affecting our environment.

Our rivers are responsible for floods that affect our economy. Floods take away valuable lives and wealth of our people. If rivers are not properly dredged and deepened, they will never be useful to us in any way. Bangladesh has more than 230 rivers. They are the gifts of Nature. Because of the lack of our proper knowledge, they are not properly utilized. We should take proper steps to get more benefits from our rivers.

MY FUTURE PLAN IN LIFE/MY AIM IN LIFE

Aim in life can be defined as the intention to achieve a noble goal or target. A life without any aim is like a ship without a rudder. An aim helps a man to gain his coveted objective, his career. It is like a torch that enlightens a person's career.

Among men some want to earn money, some want to earn fame and some want to serve people. I had to think a lot to choose my aim/profession/career in life. I think, it should be decided according to one's aptitude, ability and merit. Considering these my choice is the simple wish to be a teacher. A good teacher can lead the nation to the highest stage of prosperity if he can properly teach the students with his ideals.

Undoubtedly teaching is a very noble profession. A teacher is like a potter who works on wheel to give shape to his pots, cutting out rough edges to give a perfect finish to the end product. At present neither the students nor the teachers have the same sincerity and singleness of purpose. However, there are still exceptional teachers who are genuinely concerned about the future of their pupils and try to guide them sincerely.

Unfortunately, there are people who take to teaching out of compulsion, because the other avenues are not open to them. They drift into teaching because they have failed to achieve their ambition. I have by choice decided to opt for teaching. In order to fulfill my future plan, I must acquire some degrees. After passing my HSC Examination, I will do my Honours and Masters in English. After acquiring the degrees, I shall join an academic institution to teach the students with my best efforts. It must be a very satisfying experience to shape young minds, eager to learn, who come to a teacher in total faith.

One cannot overlook the advantages that one has as a teacher. One gets so many holidays which can be used to catch up with other interests one neglects during the working days. This is really a very tempting prospect. Besides, over the years the salary of teachers has also become very attractive.

Teaching has certain distinct advantages over other professions. Teachers do not have very long working hours. Surely, lots of time is taken in preparing the lessons, correction work, etc. Still one can have ample time to pursue other interests. I am not unaware that it is quite difficult to secure admission in a good teachers' training college. I am willing to work hard to actualize my ambition, and waiting for the day when, after completing my training in teaching, I can become a teacher. That day indeed will be a red-letter day in my life.

A Journey by Train

Journey is always a pleasure to me. Whenever I get a chance to go on a journey, my joy knows no bound. I was looking forward to having a chance to go on a long journey. At last, my turn of waiting ended and my long-cherished dream came true. That day I got an opportunity to make a journey by train. My friend Palash stays in Chattogram. He invited me to pay a visit to Chattogram. I accepted the invitation gladly. On the 5th of March, I went to Kamalapur Rail Station. It was 5.30 in the morning, but yet I had to spend much time to procure a ticket. Anyway, I secured a seat. The train was supposed to start at 6.30 a.m. So, I got into the train at 6.10 am. Of course, the train warned us about the time to board. At the fixed time the guard whistled and the train left.

Fortunately, my seat was beside a window. It was an express train. It was also luxurious and its seats were more comfortable than I had anticipated. I looked around and passengers had a brief chat with others of the compartment. Immediately the train got its full speed and began to run ahead. It left behind hundreds of shops, houses and buildings. I tried to have a close look at some things and scenes but I could not. The train went on with electric speed. Soon, the train crossed the urban area and got away from the hustle and bustle of the city. As soon as it entered rural area, a number of beautiful scenes came into my sight. It seemed to me that the trees of either side of the railway were running behind. I enjoyed the green fields and the golden crops. I enjoyed gossiping with my fellow travellers. On the way the train stopped at some stations and a number of passengers got down. I bought boiled eggs, bananas and green coconuts along with a few magazines from one of these stoppages. When I was in Chattogram, I saw many hills, which enchanted me. Within hours the train reached Chattogram and I got down at a certain station. Later on my friend came and received me.

The memories of this journey by train will remain ever fresh in my mind. Every time I recall these memories, I feel immense relief. I lost myself in the dreamland during the journey. The journey gave me more than I had expected. These few hours were probably the most pleasant hours in my life.

Childhood Memories

"Time marches on but memories stay.

Torturing silently the rest of our days."

Life is nothing but a summation of days, months and years. A life has a number of phases like babyhood, childhood, adulthood, manhood and senility. Among the phases of life childhood probably impresses a man more. To me childhood is the sweetest period in a man's life. The memories of my childhood haunt me like a passion very often. Whenever I feel very lonely or dejected, I dive into the memories of my childhood, remove my loneliness and fill my heart with happiness. Then I wish I could be a child again.

The memories of my school days dominate my childhood. I was sent to school in a distant primary school namely Kanchichora Government Primary School up to class two. Then I was made to take my admission in another school called Mathbari Government Primary School. I used to go to school with my village friends. My cousin who was one year senior to me was my constant school-going companion. In school the classes were not much interesting to me but during the leisure period we used to play various sports. I was a regular student in my class. So, I was hardly beaten or scolded by my teachers for negligence to studies. After the school was over, in our way home we used to play ha-du-du, hide and seek, gather plums or stole green mangoes from some trees and sometimes used to bathe in stream. I used to flee from school to do these things with my friends. One day I along with my three friends went to a friend's house to eat palm. But as the tree was long none of us dared to climb up it. So, we had to come back with a dissatisfied mind. In my school I was not a good athlete. Yet I used to take part in various events. Once I got two prizes in race and long-jump. Then I was very excited and happy. The holidays were very favourite to me. On holidays I would play with my village friends almost the whole day. Sometimes I would go to some other village for play. I also would visit my nearby relatives on holidays.

One day, we heard a sad news. We rushed to our grandfather's house. I saw my grandfather lying on his bed with a white sheet covering him as if he were sleeping. All were weeping. I wept too. It was the first death scene in my life. It was a very sad event in my life because he loved me very much, told me interesting stories and bought me toys.

How happy I was in my childhood days! The happy and pleasant memories of those days still give me pleasure. If I could go back to those days again!

Value of Time

Time is the collection of moments, seconds, minutes, hours, days, months and years. Time has no beginning and no ending. The value of time is immeasurable. It is the most valuable asset in human life. It is more valuable than money. Actually, time runs at its own pace. It waits for neither kings nor subjects and it has pity for beggars either.

Time is like a running river which goes constantly ahead but it never runs back. Hence, we should not waste it in any way. He who wastes it is sure to suffer in the long run. On the other hand, one who makes the best use of time, will definitely be blessed by time. Similarly, we can earn the money we spent but we cannot get back the time we have lost. So, it makes time more valuable than money. Therefore, we should utilize time in the most possible way. Every work has its proper time and we must perform it on time. Any delay may lead us to failure.

We live a short span of time in the world. But we've a lot of works to do. We should not put off any work for tomorrow. All activities of our life such as study, attending classes, homework, sleep, exercise, etc. should be done in time. Our daily activities should be well planned and well organized so that we can complete our duties and responsibilities in time. The more we will be punctual, the more we will be successful.

There is a proverb, "Time and tide wait for none." We can regain lost money and health but time once gone is gone forever. Our life is made up of moments. We must make use of our moments. If we neglect time, we neglect the whole life. The success of human life depends on the proper use of time. By proper use of our time, we can be great. All the great scholars, scientists and leaders of the world made proper use of time in their lives. It is worth mentioning that the universe is running very nicely because the sun, the earth, the moon and all the other planets are performing their duties on time.

Wasting time is a great vice. Those who do not understand the value of time, can't succeed in life. If a student does not prepare his lesson on time, he will definitely fail in the examination. Only the idle persons while away their time. They lag behind and suffer in the long run. Proper use of time is essential in every sphere of life.

Almighty Allah has given us life with limited time. But our duties and responsibilities are much more. So, we should not waste even a single moment. Through proper management of time we can make our life successful and turn Bangladesh into a happy and developed country.

THE NATURAL BEAUTIES OF BANGLADESH

Bangladesh is called a land of natural beauties. She is nature's darling child. No other country of the world, is so blessed with the beauty of nature as Bangladesh. It is a country of gorgeous greenery on the shore of the Bay of Bengal. Many rivers, birds, forests, historical places and above all, six seasons have made this country enchantingly beautiful.

Bangladesh is a land of rivers. So, many rivers have flowed through the country making it a beautiful waterland. Fishermen catching fish using small boats is a common scene here. The banks of the rivers present an unbroken view of a variety of sights which enchant the eyes. The grand spectacle of the rivers on a moonlit night is simply bewitching.

Bangladesh has some beautiful places like the Sundarbans, Cox's Bazar and Kuakata Sea Beaches, Chattogram Hill Tracts etc. These places have extra-ordinary beauties which attract the tourists from home and abroad. The Bay of Bengal is another beautiful gift of nature. The blue water of the sea and its rising waves are always a pleasant sight which cools our turbulent mind in a moment. Cox's Bazar beach is a nice place for the nature lovers. It is the longest beach in the world. The Saint Martin's Island is a gift of nature in the Bay of Bengal. The Sundarbans, largest mangrove forest of the world is another bountiful gift of nature. Its wildlife and mysterious setting makes it more charming.

There is always the play of light and shade in the land. She enjoys the pleasure of sunny weather, luxury of colors and throws an appeal of an unending expanse of greenery. Her green fields overflowing with golden crops, the spotless blue and cloudy sky, her moonlit and pitch-dark night— all these present scenes of romantic charm and beauty. In Bangladesh, six seasons in their distinctive roles, come in procession and adorn our land with exquisite beauty. People forget the monotony of life and start their work anew with the change of seasons.

There are some hilly areas in Bangladesh which are the home of natural beauty. The tea gardens in the hill slopes in Sylhet are very charming spots. The small hills in Mymensingh area are also very beautiful landscapes. The presence of tribal people there makes this place more splendid. Rangamati, Khagrachhari and Bandarban are the three hilly districts where nature has opened her wings of beauty. The beautiful lakes and fountains of crystal-clear water are easily noticeable here which charm us all. Birds play an important role to make Bangladesh beautiful. There are various types of birds in our country. We meet some guest birds during winter. The melodious singings of birds please our mind. We rise early in the morning hearing the sweet tunes of different birds.

The natural beauties have made this country the homeland of many animals and birds. Many poets have written their poems on the beauty of Bangladesh. So, no one can deny that Bangladesh is a matchless beauty spot in the world.
